OVERVIEW

Located at Oranienburger Straße, this spacious, fully furnished period apartment combines grand Berlin architecture with distinctive designer interiors. Views across Monbijou Park towards Museum Island and Berlin Cathedral make this a particularly special place to live.

Ceilings approximately 3.80 metres high, ornate plasterwork, tall double doors and beautiful parquet floors define the character of this 138-square-metre apartment. Large windows and sweeping views through the adjoining rooms create an exceptional sense of space. Carefully selected designer furniture, artwork and thoughtful touches of colour complement the historic architecture.

The expansive living room offers generous space to unwind, with comfortable lounge seating. A Samsung projector displays television programmes on the wall in a large format, creating an immersive home cinema experience.

The separate dining room, centred around a large oval table, provides an elegant setting for shared meals and evenings with guests. A cosy seating area in the bay window invites you to read and enjoy the view. The balcony offers a place to experience the atmosphere of Berlin while looking out over the greenery.

The spacious, fully equipped kitchen adds a contemporary touch with freestanding stainless-steel units. Wide doors connect it to the dining room, emphasising the apartment's open and generous layout.

The bedroom features a double bed and ample storage. A separate reading room with a leather sofa provides an additional retreat. Two bathrooms, each with a shower and WC, complete the accommodation; one also includes a bidet.

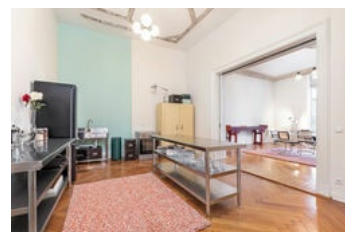

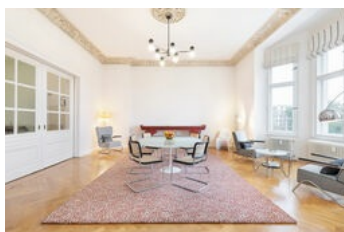

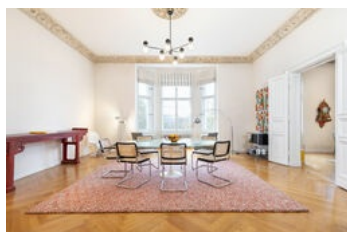

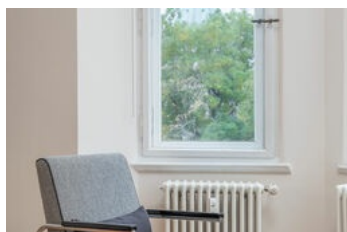

The impressive entrance hall, with columns and an elaborately decorated ceiling, introduces the building's distinctive character. The historic staircase with its sweeping banister continues this impression. The third-floor apartment is conveniently accessible by lift.
